

Per contractual obligations, “Do higher wages improve service quality? Evidence from foster care in California using a regression discontinuity design” is under internal review at the California Department of Social Services through the week of November 14th. The paper will be posted here as soon as the review is complete.

Thank you for your patience.